ABSTRACT

Under the present state of modernity, there has been a change and development of human society in various dimensions, including food, dress, or even way of perception. Islam cannot escape the confrontation of modernity either. This study focuses on the changing perception of Muslim women in Thai society, with particular emphasis on the diversity of Muslim women in Thai society. A female student living in the Bangkok area, which is constantly clashing with modernity and is present in both thought and lifestyle dimensions, however, the culturally strong Islam is challenged by modernism. Also, one of the clearest examples of the fusion of Muslim culture is the dress of Muslim women. In addition, the way of perception and life of the Islamic people are challenged by the system Western idea
