EXTENDED GRATITUDE

Bismillahirrahmanirrahim, these following pages are dedicated to those of you who I would like to pay tribute to because of their presence, overwhelming support, and prayers being sent so that all of the odds and madness are starting to pave the way ahead. I do cherish all of your presence and encouragements. Therefore, I want to enclose my highest gratitude to:

1. My parents, Ayah and Mama. Thank you for your existence that still pushing me out in all situations and transforming me into a woman who totally knows who she is. I am really grateful of finishing my undergraduate studies and being given a chance in proving of what I am capable of, even if I took a whole different path. Thank you for believing me as your eldest child, also as your lovely and rebellious eldest daughter. Yotta and Raya, my two little brothers that grows up into future handsome young lads. Yot, congratulations for entering your dreamt college, and Ray, keep being awesome. There are some times that I seem so distant, filled with unattached expressions and responses. But, know this for sure that I love you all so much to my itsy bits, and I'd still love you even if there are many differences within us. You are all my family that I would always cherish and keep dearly into my heart, as a daughter and the elder sister of yours. This thesis paper is our paragon and a present of joy with passion from me.

2. My paper advisor, Mrs. Dian Azmawati. Ma'am Dian for me is like a second mother figure (until I called her 'Mom') since the day I first met her in the class of 'International Relations' Issues' and transforming into my favorite lecturer after she lectured 'Southeast Asia Foreign Policy Studies' on my second year. Her resilience, her reactions, her emotions, and her way of teaching inspired me in so many levels. It was a pleasure to become your student and having you as my advisor. Ma'am Dian is someone who notices my potential in this field and makes me believe that I could go forward with what I can hone into perfection.
3. All of the examiners of this paper; Mr. Sugeng Riyanto and Mr. Sidik Jatmika on my proposal paper defense, alongside with Mrs. Grace Lestariana and Mr. Arie Kusuma Paksi on the thesis defense. All of your suggestions contributed so well to the better improvement of this paper.
4. My closest friends, I do really treasure them. They are standing still as the hearing ears and escape to the pink dreamy skies; Eiga Sitompul, Agung Farrel Salinov, Fadel Hafis R. A., and the ultimate INFJ-T boy and closest shadow slash partner, Gilang Rabbani. We started our crack journey together as lads and a damsel with our memorable moment at Jalan Soedirman being fined by police and now we are here, emotionally attached as closest friends we had never been imagined before. Our time is so short, and we have to part ways again. If one day in the future someone asked me to describe what youth looks like, I would be gladly telling them about every single one of you. I love you all, platonically. You all have won a special blank space in my memories of my younger days. Thank you for our crack head moments along with restless assignments, ambitious band-wagon moments in competition, heartbreaking fights, heartwarming rebounds, and loyalty.

5. An extraordinary man named Bizar Adha Setiawan. The strong man that sticks with me through the thick and thin ending years in my college days. A power house, a genius, and a big bear that radiates care and love. An overwhelming and living support machine with the same head frequency and resonance as mine do. An independent man who faces the harsh world, yet still allocates his time to keep this damsel in company. I don't believe in myths of writing names in this paper. So, brace yourself. I am really looking forward for the rollercoaster, hold on tight. Danke schön.

6. My Thammasat University exchange period friends, Siwakorn Vilaivong and Sierra Napoli. A pair of love birds with both crack and intellectual side. I will miss Krungthep so much. Jingjing na. Khob khun mak khaa, for the friendship in my fall season of 2018. I hope the fate do us good and we might meet someday in the future.

7. Sekolah Indonesia Bangkok and KBRI Bangkok as my early inspiration of this thesis paper from my early teenage days. My early ideas developed from my memories during the 2010 post red-shirts demonstrations until 2012 as a middle school student has successfully carved a mark in my life experience. My Thai language still existing until now even though it's a nitnoi version of it. It come in handy when in need, and the memories of the days as an alumnae of SIB alongside with KBRI Bangkok will always become a wonderful adventure to be brought everywhere I go.
8. IPIREL UMY 2016. Keep being awesome in your way, my fellow colleagues. Thank you for letting me becoming a part of you all.
9. My high school memories that became another catapult for me to break the wall. I am so glad that I have embraced myself in the past and embracing the new 'me' in this moment. My past and my current self has come together to build a stronger version of me. This thesis paper has turned into my redemption arc to become someone who finally finds light in the right place. I have grown up and locking all my doors on the back.
10. Myself, as the closing remark of this extended gratitude session. You are the queen on your own throne. You can rule, you can shine for yourself. Be strong and chin up, Anne. You can do this.
