

ABSTRACT

This research aims at describing and analyzing parenting and parents' method in building children's akhlak (moral) offered by 'Abdullah Nāshih 'Ulwān in one of his works entitled Tarbiyah Al-Aulād Fī Al-Islām. This is a library research using qualitative approach through historical-pedagogical analysis, and the object of the research is one of 'Abdullah Nāshih 'Ulwān's works entitled Tarbiyah Al-Aulād Fī Al-Islām. The data gathering was conducted by gathering datas from various literatures. The focus of the data gathering was finding various principles, dalil (theorems), theories, opinions, and ideas of 'Abdullah Nashih 'Ulwan written in his work. Data analysis was then conducted. The method in analysing the data was descriptive method using content analysis.

The result of the research concludes that: 1) authoritative parenting is the good concept of parenting. Parents or educators who apply authoritative parenting apply the right balance of control and autonomy, so that it gives children chances to build their independence while providing standard, limitation, and guidance needed by children. 2) Akhlak building according to 'Abdullah Nāshih 'Ulwān can be conducted through three types of basic education. They are iman (faith) education, moral education, and social education. Children's akhlak, according to 'Abdullah Nashih 'Ulwan can be built by habituation, role modeling, advice, attention, supervision, and applying punishment.
